One-hundred-seventy cartons holding thousands of tapes and discs of cantorial, Hebrew and Yiddish music dating back to the early 1900s are now the property of Florida Atlantic University Libraries.

The music collection was donated to the school's Judaica Sound Archives by the mother of the late Barry Serota. He was executive director of the Chicago-based Institute for Jewish Sound Recording.

It is being archived in pieces and available for the public to hear online: http://bit.ly/pmFI5S
