Blanche Serota embraces a copy of the specially-created record label that honors her late son, Barry Serota, an attorney, record producer, and executive director of the Chicago-based Institute of Jewish Sound Recording. In honor of her son, Mrs. Serota donated 1,500 LPs, more than 700 78-rpm discs, 100 digital audio tapes, and 1,443 audio reel-to-reel tapes to the Judaica Sound Archives (JSA) at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton. The collection includes rare record masters and pre-production one-of-a-kind recordings and are on display on JSA’s Sound Angel recognition wall of FAU’s Wimberly Library.
