Efram Goldberg’s exhibition of color photographs titled “The Unseen World Around Us” gives an intimate look into the savage and beautiful lives of insects and spiders that are found in county and state parks throughout South Florida. Goldberg, who grew up in Costa Rica and graduated in 2011 from Florida Atlantic University with a bachelor’s degree in chemistry, was introduced to photography in high school by his father, a photographer who now lives in Shanghai, China. “I think it is amazing how the camera acts as a window to another world by capturing details that would not ordinary be seen or noticed,” said Goldberg. “I try to capture the ongoing struggle for survival in this savage merciless war between predator and prey, life and death. In sharing some of what I have seen and photographed, I hope to inspire others to become more aware of this unseen world around them.” For more information, contact Efram Goldberg at egoldb12@fau.edu or visit www.eframgoldberg.com.
